

SLAIN BY A PATIENT HE SOUGHT TO CURE

BLOODY WORK OF A MURDER- OUS CRANK.

Dr. J. S. Wintermute of Tacoma Shot
By a Hypochondriac—Murderer
Commits Suicide After Killing the Physician—Coachman Shoots a Man and Himself at New York City

Tacoma, Wash., Nov. 11.—Dr. James Wintermute, who moved to Tacoma ten years ago from Chicago, was murdered Tuesday by Samuel Tucker, a hypochondriac. Dr. Wintermute had been treating Tucker for melancholia and endeavored to make him believe he was not sick. This Tucker refused to do. Tucker had long been known as an eccentric character. After shooting Wintermute, Tucker placed the revolver in his own head and fired. He died instantly.

Dr. Wintermute, mortally wounded, was removed to the hospital. Eleven physicians gathered around him and prepared to administer chloroform. Dr. Wintermute, though desperately wounded, gave the physicians instructions as to what to do, and before chloroform was administered he made a short ante-mortem statement to his wife. He said that he had treated Tucker, and added that he had never done him an injury. The operation showed that the bullet had cut the intestine in four places, and had severed several arteries. Death resulted from hemorrhage and shock.

It is learned that Tucker saw Wintermute Monday night, and was told nothing ailed him. Afterward he told an acquaintance he would see the doctor again in the morning, and if he did not get some relief there would be some shooting. Tucker has long lived alone in a shack, a dog being his only companion.

Dr. Wintermute was born in St. Paul in 1860. Ten years later his family moved to Yankton, S. D. Later he was employed in Stinson's bank, Hamilton, Ont. He began the study of medicine at Ann Arbor in 1879, then went to Rush Medical College, Chicago, graduating in 1893, after which he took a course in mineralogy there.

BATTLE WITH BANDITS.

Perry, Ok., Nov. 11.—From Greer county, Oklahoma, seventy-five miles southwest of here, comes the news of a battle between officers of Greer and Washita counties and a large body of Mexican horse thieves, in which one robber was killed outright, several wounded and two officers wounded. A band of eight or ten Mexicans have been stealing horses and committing numerous depredations in the western counties of Oklahoma. Officers of Washita and Greer counties organized a posse and came on the Mexicans in camp in Greer county. The officers were led by Abraham Brennan of Washita county. Five of the Mexicans were put in jail at Arapahoe.

GOVERNMENT CROP REPORT.

Indications of a Slight Increase in the Rate of Yield for Corn.

Washington, Nov. 11.—The returns to the department of agriculture for the month of November as to rate of yield make the average of corn 27.3 bushels, which is above the yield indicated by the condition figures in October. Last year the preliminary estimate of yield was 26.2 bushels. The European agent notes the lack of trustworthy estimates of the Russian wheat shortage. The advance in price, which is expected to be fairly well maintained, will result in increased acreage in Great Britain. Wet weather in October throughout central Europe as unfavorable for the potato crop. A good corn yield has been realized on the lower Danube.

IRELAND IN DANGER.

Rumors at St. Paul That He Is to Be Removed by the Pope.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 11.—It is rumored here in Catholic circles that Archbishop Ireland is to be removed from the see of St. Paul. The prime movers in the attack upon the archbishop are the Jesuits. They base their charges upon the recent political utterances of the archbishop and declare further that he holds beliefs which are not in harmony with the dogmas of the Roman Catholic church. This is without doubt the culmination of the bitter feud which has existed for many years between Archbishop Corrigan and Ireland.

Preparing to Meet the Famine.

Madras, India, Nov. 11.—Anxiety is felt here at the absence of the northeast monsoon. But the conditions are much more favorable than they were in 1887, when previous bad seasons had exhausted the resources of the villages and no proper relief organization existed. It is believed now that grain has been stored in considerable quantities and the government is fully prepared for emergencies.

FARMERS IN SESSION.

Meet in National Congress at Indianapolis, Ind.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 11.—The welfare of American agriculture is receiving the attention of representative farmers from all parts of the country, who have come here as delegates to the sixteenth annual session of the Farmers' National congress. The meeting is being held in the hall of the Indiana house of representatives.

Gov. Matthews, in his address of welcome, said that Indiana, recognizing the truth that the basis of the wealth and prosperity of a people rests upon the farmer, has ever held out an encouraging hand to agriculture. He said he believed it was well to mingle a good deal of politics with agriculture. In conclusion, he said the farm has been the home of the true conservatism and highest patriotism.

J. M. Stahl of Chicago, the secretary of the congress, responded to the address of the governor. In the course of his speech he said that in spite of trusts, combines and monopolies, this is the best country in the world.

J. G. Offutt of Indiana followed the secretary. The farmers of the land, he said, are in a straightened condition; the farms everywhere are plastered with mortgages that cannot be removed. He hoped this congress would advocate some legislation in the interest of the farmer.

L. S. Coffin of Iowa said the farmers of his state did not come to this congress with a doleful story. "We are not out of debt, as a rule," said he, "but a very small per cent of our farms are mortgaged. We are happy in the prospect before us." He concluded: "If there is anything that should demand the attention of the national congress at Washington it is the agricultural interests."

At the afternoon session B. F. Clayton of Iowa, the president of the congress, delivered his annual address. Nearly all the states are represented, but the largest attendance is from the states of Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Groat of Helena was badly hurt; Mail Clerk E. F. Goodhue, Helena, is missing. Superintendent E. J. Pearson, Master Mechanic W. S. Clark and physicians left for the scene shortly after 1 p. m. with a wrecking train.

Says the Law Is Defective.

Topeka, Kas., Nov. 11.—Judge Albert Horton, who has been especially retained by the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway Company in the alien land-act receivership case, reports that he has made the discovery that the act upon which the present case is based was not constitutionally passed by the Legislature, as the House Journal of 1891 does not record that the House adopted the bill by a yeas and nays vote, as the constitution requires. It is said that there are thirteen acts defective in the same way among the session laws of 1891.

OSCAR IS TO HELP SETTLE THE THING

FINAL MOVE IN THE VENEZUELAN MATTER.

King of Sweden and Norway Selected As the Fifth Judge of the Tribunal—Meetings Will Likely Be Held At Stockholm—Far Reaching Concessions Are Made.

Washington, Nov. 11.—The King of Sweden and Norway, Oscar II., has been chosen by treaty between the United States and Great Britain as the fifth official arbitrator of the Venezuelan boundary question. The other arbitrators, four in number, are to be designated, two by the lord chief justice of England and two by the chief justice of the United States.

This is the final and most important feature of the treaty for the complete adjustment of the long-pending Venezuelan controversy. The treaty was concluded in Washington Monday night at the British embassy, Sir Julian Pauncefote representing her Britannic majesty and Secretary Olney the United States.

Although Lord Salisbury's statement at his Guildhall speech Monday night was without details, it is possible to give all of the essential features of the treaty. The main point, as already stated, is that King Oscar II., whose full title is "King of Sweden and Norway, the Goths and Vandals," is the fifth or decisive arbitrator. It was deemed best to make this choice rather than to leave it to the selection of the four arbitrators. The latter are assured of being men of eminent judicial attainment, as their choice is left entirely to the judiciary of the respective countries.

The other essential feature of the treaty is that fifty years actual possession is to constitute title. With this limitation as to the settled districts, the entire sweep of Venezuela boundary is placed in the hands of the court of arbitration. The treaty covers only Venezuela, and the question of general arbitration between the United States and Great Britain is left to future negotiations. As a king seldom leaves his country, except on state visits to other sovereigns, it is not expected that King Oscar II. will go outside of Sweden for the meeting of the arbitrators, and the court is likely to sit at Stockholm, the capital of Sweden, where King Oscar's palace and the halls of the Swedish riksdag are located.

Far-Reaching Concessions Made.

London, Nov. 11.—The Times in an editorial commenting on the fact that Venezuela is not to be represented on the arbitration tribunal says: "This is a most far-reaching concession and a signal success for the United States. It secures to England the advantage of dealing with a respectable and friendly government and admits the principle that the United States may not only intervene in disputes with South American republics, but may entirely supersede the original disputants and assume exclusive control of the negotiations."

Missouri Lynching Averted.

Richmond, Mo., Nov. 11.—Early Tuesday morning, after the sheriff had in vain tried to persuade the mob that surrounded the jail trying to get at and lynch Jesse Winner and Lon Lackey, charged with the murder of Mrs. Eva Winner and her two children, John Sharp, brother of the woman, addressed the would-be lynchers. While he wanted the murderers punished, he wanted the punishment to come through legal process of law, if possible. His talk finally had a good effect and within an hour afterward the crowd scattered. It is believed no further attempt at lynching will be made.

Va., Nov. 11.—Contractors Caldwell and Dayton, who were compelled to discontinue work on the Belington and Roaring Creek Railroad in July, have put a force of 150 men to work on the last five miles of the line. Canton, Ohio, Nov. 11.—Gov.-Elect H. S. Pingree called on President-Elect McKinley Tuesday afternoon. He was accompanied by Col. John Atkinson, republican elector, of Detroit. The Michigan visitors came via Cleveland, arriving here at 1:30 o'clock. When they called at the McKinley residence they were cordially received by Major McKinley, who held a conference with them for an hour and a half. Before his departure from the city Gov.-Elect Pingree said: "We are here to make a social call on President-Elect McKinley. We came direct from Detroit, and will return to Cleveland, thence by boat to Detroit. There is no special significance in the visit. We are not seeking office."

Repeal of Wilson Law Assured.

Devil's Lake, N. D., Nov. 11.—Senator Hansbrought, who, many believed, would join the free-silver forces to block tariff legislation, says: "The senate will have a protective tariff majority after March 4 next, and this insures the repeal of the ad valorem Wilson law, and the passage of a revenue measure framed along the lines of republican doctrine. There will be enough democrats in the senate who will join the republicans to kill any free-silver amendments that may be offered to the tariff bill which will be sent there. With the free-silver amendments disposed of, the silver state republicans will vote in favor of the tariff bill on its final passage. On the currency question I do not believe that any republican senator, and I include those from the silver states, will undertake to embarrass the new administration."

Urges Gold Democrats to Help.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 11.—Word has gone out from the headquarters here to gold democrats everywhere that they will be expected to co-operate with the McKinley administration in any effort that may be made to reform the currency system. ## MANITOBA PROBLEM SOLVED.

Catholics and Protestants to Have Equal Privileges.

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 11.—Official announcement of the terms on which the parochial school question has been settled is still delayed, owing to Premier Greenway's absence, but everything is so definitely arranged that his ministers are not now so closely guarding the secret. It is learned that concessions have been made to the Catholics which will likely pacify them for the loss of their parochial schools. The chief concession is that half an hour each day in the national or public schools will be set apart for religious instruction. The plan is that in one of the rooms of each school the priest for half an hour shall have the right of instructing children of the Catholic faith. If other denominations desire the same privilege, it will be granted. Another concession is that in districts where there is any considerable percentage of French Catholic children the French language shall be taught as well as the English. Official announcement of the terms of settlement is expected Thursday.

TRANS-AMERICAN CANAL.

Novel Scheme Presented in the Knights of Labor Conventions.

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 11.—The general assembly of the Knights of Labor opened its session Tuesday morning. General Master Workman Sovereign presided, but did not speak. Mayor Warner commended the principles of the order and welcomed its members to Rochester. Brief addresses were made by T. B. McGuire of the executive board, Mrs. Lulu E. Ford of Rochester, who is the only woman delegate, and J. G. Schoenfarber of Baltimore.

One of the schemes which the assembly will be asked to indorse is the plan for a canal from the Atlantic to the Pacific, starting from Sandy Hook and running parallel with one of the Pacific railroad lines to the coast. The object is to furnish work to the unemployed.

Rudolph, Haviland & Company Are the Consignors, and the Weed Goes to Belgium and Holland—Is the Largest Lot Yet Sent Across the Sea.

Wisconsin smoke will soon be curling from the pipes and cigars of the Belgians and the Dutchmen. Three hundred cases of tobacco shipped today by Rudolph, Haviland & Son and the entire lot will be sent Europe.

The shipment is composed of "fillers." Two hundred cases will go direct to Antwerp, Belgium, while the remainder will be sent to the markets of Amsterdam, Holland.

This is one of the largest shipments yet made from this city to the markets of the old world. The average weight of the cases is 300 pounds, and the freight, which is paid by both the receiver and shipper, will amount to a goodly sum.

At $35 a case—which is held to be the average price—the shipment will be worth $10,500.

Thus does the product of Rock county acres go from the "land of its birth" across the salty sea direct.

PORTER PEOPLE FEEL GOOD.
All Except the Silverites, and They Are Glum—Other Notes.

Porter, Nov. 11.—A few weeks ago, when we prophesied a genuine snowslide, some of the knowing (?) people only smiled. Thursday morning of last week, when our quiet little burg awoke from slumber, what was the surprise to find the earth all covered with the beautiful and downy snow beneath it, was—why, the silverites, even the elements had to rejoice. But no smiles are seen upon our "dems" faces, and they do so hate to be reminded of November 3, that out of sympathy for them, we will simply say, "By-by, Bryan, A Revoir, Sewall." Mr. Julest, of Cooksville, has a milk route to Eagle factory, this making three loads, besides all the home patrons. The factory will operate every second day, until March 1, after which it will run every day. James Farrington, who spent the summer in Minnesota, is shaking hands with old friends. L. Thurston has moved from N. A. Pound's house, to Fulton. E. G. Pound, a well known insurance agent, died at his old home here on Sunday of apoplexy after only a day's illness. The funeral was held on Tuesday, services being in the house, after which a large concourse of friends followed the remains to their last resting place in the Evansville cemetery. Farmers are husking corn with rather cold fingers these days, only about half of the crop being husked. James Carson is about to move on the Collins farm. Thomas Heffernan who has spent the fall in Green county, is again with us. Mrs. Dennis McCarthy is spending a few weeks with her daughter in the town of Fulton.

BOY PUT A MARBLE IN HIS EAR.

Nine-Year Old Lad Might Have Had Serious Trouble.

There was consternation at the home of A. T. Wilkins, on South Bluff street, when the nine year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilkins told his parents that he "had a marble in his ear." The boy put one of the small spheres in his left ear, "just for fun," and it disappeared from view. The boy complained of considerable pain and was taken to the office of Dr. J. P. Thorne, where the marble was recovered. The marble had failed to touch the drum, thus saving the youngster much trouble.

THE FOOTBALL GAMES CANCELLED

Games of Beloit With Minnesota and Carlton College Off.

Beloit Wis., Nov. 10.—To the great disappointment of the Beloit college football team and collegemen, the Minnesota university team has cancelled its engagement for a game with Beloit at Minneapolis, Saturday. It is supposed they prefer not to engage in the hard struggle sure to result from a game with Beloit so soon before their contest with the Wisconsin university. Carlton college of Northfield has also cancelled its game with Beloit for next Monday.

AL SMITH DOESN'T HAVE TO HOLLER

Declaring Off the Demonstration Releases Him From An Agreement.

Al. Smith is not particularly sorry that the republican jollification is declared off. Some time ago, Mr. Smith and C. W. Blay entered into a political agreement. Had Bryan been elected, Mr. Blay was to have marched in a Bryan procession, blowing a tin horn, carrying a torch, and hurrahing for the "boy orator." As McKinley won, Mr. Smith was to go through the same performance in the republican demonstration.

HOW TO CARE FOR YOUR WHEEL

Hang It Up With the Tires Partially Inflated in a Warm Room.

Now that the snow has commenced to fall, cycling as a recreation will be "shelved" for a time. The wheelman who cares for his wheel will carefully store it for the winter. The all important parts of a wheel, the bearings, should be carefully cleaned and replaced. The tires should be inflated to a medium point and the wheel hung up off the floor. The plated parts should be covered with vaseline, protecting them from rust. The best temperature is about 60 degrees and the room should be dry.

Flagler July 10, 1835, and came to Wisconsin in 1844, and settled on a farm four miles north of the city of Janesville, where she lived until some years after the death of her husband, who died in 1856 leaving her a widow with eight children—seven boys and one girl. She sent four sons to the civil war. She moved to the village of Milton in 1874, where she lived until 1887, since then she has lived with some of her children. ## THE OVERFLOW OF LOCAL NEWS.

COL. INGERSOLL AND J. G. BLAINE

How The Latter Came to be Called 'The Plumed Knight.'

More than one great man in history owes some portion of his fame to a happy title bestowed casually by an admirer. James G. Blaine for instance. When Robert G. Ingersoll, at the republican national convention, in Cincinnati, in 1876, referred to Mr. Blaine as the "Plumed Knight" he did it on the impulse of the moment. The eminent thinker, lawyer, soldier and statesman who has done more to beautify the English language by his exquisite turns of thought than any one else in this century, saw that the expression—the Plumed Knight—would exemplify the position of Mr. Blaine before the American people and he uttered it. The effect was electrifying. The words were taken up in the convention with a shout of approval and admiration and within twenty-four hours they were ringing in every city, town and hamlet on both sides of the Atlantic.

The "Plumed Knight" Why had no one thought of it before Robert G. Ingersoll? Why was it this silvery-tongued, eloquent, smiling man, to whom all the world seemed beautiful, and yet who could, on occasion, utter denunciations of false theories that fairly seared an opponent, was the only person to hit upon a description of James G. Blaine that was so exactly applicable? Every one could see it, now that Colonel Ingersoll had pointed it out. The stalwart warrior, in the panoply of political greatness, with his long plume waving defiantly on the crest of his helmet, was, of course, the champion of republican hosts, and he could never be anything else in the future. Colonel Ingersoll, at the end of his impassioned speech before the vast concourse, comprising the mightiest intellects of the nation, had stamped the romanticism of chivalry upon the name of Blaine, and henceforth its owner was not only distinguished, but heroic.

Colonel Ingersoll, silvery-haired and silvery-tongued, as when he made the great "Plumed Knight" speech, will face an enormous audience on the occasion of his lecture on "The Bible," at Myers' Grand opera house, Monday evening, November 16.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY.

1020—The Mayflower compact signed in Cape Cod harbor.

1761—John Abercrombie, the most eminent Scotch physician and medical author of his time, born at Aberdeen; died 1841.

1850—Lucretia Mott, American reformer and philanthropist, died near Philadelphia; born 1799. While a teacher in Philadelphia Lucretia Mott entered the LUCRETIA MOTT ministry of the Friends and became noted as a preacher. She adhered to the Hicksite branch upon the division of the society. Prominent as an antislavery advocate, she went to London in 1840 as a delegate to the world's antislavery convention. Women were excluded from the convention, and upon her return to America the enthusiastic reformer devoted her efforts to the improvement of the legal status of women. She continued her interest in the welfare of the colored people and in religious matters to the end of her active life.

1886—Paul Bert, distinguished French savant, died at Hanoi, Annam; born 1833.

1893—Charles H. Bell, ex-governor of New Hampshire, died at Exeter, N. H.; born 1823.

MR. BRYAN'S SPEECHES.

Close examination of election figures shows that Mr. Bryan lost more votes than he made by his speeches.

His speeches certainly stimulated popular interest in the silver question.

They were not strong either in logic or in diction, but they appealed to the ordinary mind in a familiar way, and those who heard them were set to thinking upon the subject. His arguments were easy to understand, and when they came to be examined their weakness was readily detected. In his anxiety to simplify the issue, he gave away his case, as the lawyers say. Those who flocked to his meetings for the purpose of learning what the leading champion of free silver had to say in its support went away with questions in their minds which he had suggested, but had not answered. Thus they were put in the way of studying the matter for themselves, and the more they studied the less reason they saw for accepting his conclusion.

MONROE DOCTRINE STANDS.

England has recognized the right of the United States to interfere in the Venezuelan boundary case. This is the real significance of Lord Salisbury's announcement.

A year ago Great Britain was up in arms at the very idea of such "Yankee impudence." The intervention of the United States in English colonial affairs—Monroe doctrine or no Monroe doctrine—was declared to be intolerable. There was no attempt in this country to meet bluster with bluster, defiance with defiance; but Secretary Olney quietly, persistently, firmly, pressed home upon England the fact that we should not consent to territorial acquisition in America by European powers.

After twelve months of correspondence, the point has been carried, and when the fiftieth anniversary of the formation of the Monroe doctrine comes, next month, it will see the doctrine grown doubly strong through European assent.

FIGURES TELL THE STORY.

Bank clearances and railroad freight receipts show the effect of election. Both have been low recently on account of the dread that the riot and repudiation party would win, but as this peril is removed the trade revival has begun, and the banks and the railroads reflect the improved conditions.

It is safe to predict that the business of both will, before 1897 ends, go up to the figures never before touched.

Even the solidity of the solid south did not keep down a protest against free silver. Mr. Cleveland's plurality in the south in 1892 were more than double those given to Bryan, while Maryland, Delaware, West Virginia and Kentucky, which went for Cleveland, are now all on the other side.

The republican papers of the country gave Mr. Bryan's speeches an average of two hundred columns of space during the last three months. Having done the fair thing, they feel justified in demanding that hereafter he pay regular display rates.

European nations have been hoping for a chance to buy our products with free coinage silver. Their hope having left them they are rushing for the bargain counter with hands full of gold.

Though only a few days old, the business boom has added hundreds of millions to values in this country.

Recognition of Chairman E. D. C.

good work is not confined to White-water. All Wisconsin appreciates the quiet, effective campaigning done by the Walworth county editor.

The difference between northern and southern election methods is obvious. The Arkansas vote was counted before election; the North Dakota vote hasn't been counted yet.

Built Better Than He Knew.

Mrs. Jackson—I thought you told me you trimmed that hat yourself. I'm sure it is just as stylish as if it had been done by a high-priced milliner.

Mrs. Johnson (complacently)—Yes, I think it has a stylish look myself. You see, my husband sat down on it accidentally after I had got done and gave it exactly the right twist. — Boston Courier.

However.

She was looking for a flat and had just found one to her taste in the vicinity of Washington square. But the price was too high, she told the janitor, a Frenchman. "The idea! Forty dollars for the first floor—all the dust from the street—ugh! Have you anything lower?"

"Mais, oui, madame; ze basement." — N. Y. Tribune.

The Accepted.

I'm happy, and I nothing lack; I've all that one can seek; The old man pats me on the back, The daughter on the cheek.

—Harlem Life.

Bound to Be Popular.

"I am writing a play which cannot fail to be a great success," said Foyer to his friend.

"What is its chief feature?"

"In the last act the comedian who has perpetrated all the chestnuts dies a miserable death." — Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Useless Sacrifice.

Elderly Friend—And the young woman refused you, did she? Perhaps you did not appear earnest enough when you proposed to her.

Reuben—Not earnest enough? By gosh, I throwed away a fresh chaw of tobacco before I ast her! — Chicago Tribune.

What He Needed.

"One good thing is," laughed young Raeket, "I've got a cork leg, so I shall never be drowned."

No; but a cork leg won't prevent you from being hanged," growled a bystander. "What you want is a castiron neck." — Chips.

A Poor Shot.

"Did you ever do much hunting, Raeket?"

"You bet! I have hunted all over the northwest and never got enough game to pay for the ammunition." — Detroit Free Press.

He Is Dead Now.

Snodgrass—What became of Tawler? I have not seen him for six months or more. He had one foot in the grave then.

Snively—He has six feet in now. — Harlem Life.

Another Kind of Meeting.

Mr. Barlow (entering the parlor at 11:15 p. m. and discovering his daughter and her fiancé)—Hello, holding a love-feast?

Miss Barlow—No, papa; a protracted meeting. — Detroit Free Press.

Demonstrated.

Miss Tireleigh—Do you really think bicycling is immoral?

Miss Pringle—I am sure of it. I heard a man swearing dreadfully the other day, just because he fell off. — Brooklyn Life.

Relief Unappreciated.

She—How long were you under treatment with Dr. Stickum.

He—A year and a half.

She—Did he relieve you?

He—Yes, of all the money I had.—Up-to-Date.

A Possible Reason.

"I wonder what De Broke wears such fearfully loud clothes for?"

"Probably he hopes to drown the importunities of his tailor." — Chicago Journal.

An Unwritten Prescription.

"Do you think I smoke too much, doctor?"

"Yes; if you have any cigars with you you had better give them to me." — Town Topics.

Home Education.

"Is it true, Gruffy, that you have taken your son out of college?"

"Yes, sir. He can board at home and acquire football." — Detroit Free Press.

A Variable Weight.

Teacher—How many ounces in a pound?

Tommy—It depends on the grocer. — Harlem Life.

There was a $5,000.00 violin stolen in New York recently. At the trial of the supposed thief several violins were shown costing but a few dollars each, which were painted and shaped to look just like the precious Stradivarius. This was done to fool the jury.

They are doing the same thing with Men's and Boys' Clothing nowadays.

A witness played the instrument and the fraud was at once detected. A little wear will do the same for Men's and Boys' Clothing.

GOV. UPHAM'S PROCLAMATION OUT

He Follows the Time Honored Custom of the Country.

Governor Upham today issued his Thanksgiving proclamation. It is as follows:

Following an honored custom, and in conformity with the proclamation of the president of the United States, I, William H. Upham, governor of the state of Wisconsin, do hereby set apart Thursday, the 26th day of November, 1896, as a day of public Thanksgiving.

Notwithstanding the general industrial depression which has prevailed in the country, we have been favored with unprecedented crops and a marked freedom from calamities, and the year is closing with the promise of a high degree of prosperity in all departments of industry.

It is fitting, therefore, that a day be set apart in which all the people of this state may join either in their homes or in public places of worship, to render thanks and humble acknowledgments to the Providence which has vouchsafed to us these many blessings.

Educational Center for Women.

The University of Durham promises, under its new charter, to become a great educational center for women. The charter, which was granted by the queen in May of last year, gives to the University of Durham the power of conferring on women all the degrees—except in divinity—which it can grant to men. Women students have already taken the degrees of B. Sc. and Mus. Bac. and in October the degree of B. A. will also be open to them.

PUETZ IS CAPTURED AND PUT IN JAIL

INSANE SCULPTOR CAUGHT BY FARMERS.

He Had Seized a Baby In a Farm House, and Rolled the Infant in the Snow Before He Could Be Overpowered—The Sheriff Will Investigate.

Frederick H. Puetz, the crazy man who created a sensation about the city, and in the towns of La Prairie and Harmony, was found yesterday afternoon, and spent last night in the county jail.

After Puetz abandoned J. E. Gleason's horse near the Sweitzer farm, all trace of him was lost. A man who was at work in a field saw him un-hitch the beast; pull the harness from the horse's back, and turn the animal loose. Then Puetz walked rapidly away. While people were scouring the country, however, Puetz was rapidly getting over the ground. About four o'clock in the afternoon he was passing a house in the town of Harmony. Suddenly he stopped, and turning abruptly, marched straight into the dwelling. A baby was playing about the house, and Puetz quickly seized the child.

Rolled Babe in the Snow.

Hurrying out doors with the child before the family realized the situation Puetz began rolling the infant in the snow—"baptizing it" he called it.

The farmer and three men laid hold of Puetz and overpowered him. To them he told the same rambling story of his "shield" etc. They at once realized that Puetz was not well balanced and decided to bring him to town. A team was hitched to a democrat wagon and with three men guarding Puetz while the fourth one drove the team, they started for town. They reached the jail about 8 o'clock last night and Puetz was locked up. Puetz is apparently a well educated and well to do man and Sheriff Appleby is endeavoring to find out more about him.

CLINTON CASE DOES NOT HOLD

J. M. Mowers Will Now Be Tried On Dotzenrod's Complaint.

Is a $1 fine sufficient punishment when one man assaults another and:

1. Blacks his whole face.

2. Knocks out four upper teeth.

3. Loosens four lower teeth.

4. Knocks down the man, upon whom he bestows his attention, ten times.

5. Cuts a deep gash over his eye.

Attorney Barnes asked the jury that is trying J. W. Mowers, in the municipal court, those five questions this morning. Then he added another:

6. And did the payment of the $1 fine settle the matter?

At 4:20 o'clock the jury brought in a verdict that the Clinton case was not to be considered, and a new trial—on the charge made by Dotzenrod—was at once begun.

The testimony for the plaintiff was all in yesterday afternoon and the arguments were made today. The case was an interesting one, the question of whether or not Mowers could be placed twice in jeopardy for the same offense.

The case went to the jury at 2:30 o'clock.

Unknown thieves stole $25 worth of underwear from the line at the home of J. H. Dower on South Main street last night. Several suits of the Lewis make were taken, the other clothes on the line being left. The police are investigating.

To Test Your Appreciation

Tomorrow, Thursday, we will make a special offer on high grade capes and jackets of the newest and latest styles, in order to test your appreciation of a most reckless reduction in high grade garment prices. We have taken in all out of our cape and jacket stock, which by the way, is of the highest grade ordered this season sixty-five jackets worth $25, $30, 18, and $15 and reduced them to $12.50 each, 33 capes worth $20, $18 and $15, and dropped the prices to $12.50 each, mind you the figures we say they are worth are not fabricated. We get just the amounts stated for the garments mentioned above. You will agree that the cut is one of considerable note, and if you take advantage of the opportunity there will be a saving to you that will be well worth the effort it costs you. Bort, Bailey & Co.

Securing a Scoop

A well-known Dublin journalist tells the following anecdote: One night as a messenger from the office of an evening paper was passing along the quays on the banks of the Liffey he heard the sound of some one struggling in the water.

"Are you drowning?" he shouted.

"I am," replied a feeble voice from the water.

"What a pity!" said the lad, consolingly. "You are just too late for the last edition to-night; but cheer up, you'll have a nice little paragraph all to yourself in the morning!"—Tit-Bits.

"It is only a trifle," said Birdie, when Jennie interrupted her with:

"Oh, that's all right. I shall value it almost as much as some of the presents I got that were really worth something."—Texas Sifter.

COLONIAL RELICS IN FINE DISPLAY

FIVE HUNDRED ARTICLES ON EXHIBITION.

Addition, There Is a Fine Indian Collection to Be Seen—Young People to Dance the Minuet This Evening—Daughters of the American Revolution Are in Charge.

Colonial relics were the attractions at the armory this afternoon, when the Loan exhibit of the Daughters of the American Revolution opened.

A tea kettle in which some of the tea that your forefathers tossed into the Boston harbor was steeped, was one of the articles shown.

A show case full of colonial manuscripts and other articles that it was desirable to keep covered, was also on exhibit.

There was a fine collection of Indian relics, not to speak of the "colonial room" presided over by Mrs. J. T. Wright and Miss Hart, or the number of articles that "came over in the Mayflower." There were five hundred relics on exhibition, exclusive of the Indian collection and the display as a fine one.

The big hall was tastefully decorated with flags, etc., and the doors opened at 3 o'clock.

THE MEN WHO LIVE ALONE.

Ho, ho, ha, ha, the jolly men
Who live alone! Why, yes,
We have our homes—that is, I guess
The rest adopt a den
That's like to mine and have a place—
Up high sometimes, you know,
But that's a splendid thing to brace
A fellow up who's slow
At climbing, and they're not too small
Nor yet too large. Now, mine
Is snug and warm, except when all
The oil's burned out, and fine.
But, say, my view across the street
Is—well, disturbing. Nay,
Not quite so bad, because it's sweet
And good. But every day
Or evening I can look across
Through windows clear and bright
And see a father romp and toss
His youngsters in the light
That glows from out his fire and see
His wife look smiling on
And kiss the babies lovingly
Until the picture's gone.
They pull the curtain down, and then
I'm cheerful as a stone
And laugh—ha, ha, the jolly men
Who live in "rooms" alone!
—Vanity.

THE ARTIST'S STORY.

"I tell you, ladies," declared handsomely and cynically Wilton Robeley, the artist, "a fortune teller showed me the image of my wife two years before I ever saw her in the flesh and thousands of miles from the place I first met her."
"You are the last man in the world whose mind I would think obscured by the clouds of mysticism," replied the rich Mrs. Austyn, his friend and patron. "You have never shown any patience with the charlatans who pretend to expose and expound the secrets that a wise providence has ordained we should not fathom. And yet you are taxing our credulity with a statement that would be marvelous if true."

"I must insist upon my veracity in this instance," smiled the artist.

"Now, don't stop to argue, mamma," urged the elder of the Austyn girls. "There is a story in this, and after Mr. Robeley has told it you can reclaim him from the darkness of his superstitions and air your theories. Now, do tell us all about it," and three pretty sisters sighed their curiosity in chorus.

"Just so. You don't ask me to explain," said the artist with a quizzical look. "I shall give you the remarkable facts and leave you to wrestle with them. Eight years ago I was in Paris pursuing my studies and lived the life of a Bohemian from choice rather than from necessity. We fellows held the responsibilities of life very lightly and laughed at all human phenomena that would not yield to the test of materialism. I was chief among the scoffers and found barefaced fraud in everything from clairvoyance to the piercing of the future through the medium of tea grounds."

"Then, as now, I occasionally broke entirely away from my usual surroundings and was one day sauntering along through Rue de Bogues. As I passed one of the most pretentious houses I was startled by a scream for help and dashed through the open doorway to find a woman battling with flames that with great leaps and flashes were consuming the white draperies of what struck me as a consecrated altar out of place. Our combined efforts soon mastered the incipient conflagration. As the woman anointed my hands with some soothing lotion I saw that she was as dark as a gypsy. Her hair rippled back from her forehead in waves of blue black, her eyes were brilliant in the same deep coloring, and her strong, even teeth suggested polished ivory. She was an amazon in size, yet the sweeping curves of beauty were such as to fascinate the artist, while her motions were as supple and graceful as those of a tiger."

"You are a gentleman, and there is but one way in which I can offer return for your service," she said as I turned to leave. Her voice was soft as the notes of a lute, and her accent gave unsuspected charms to my mother tongue. "I was born of royal blood in India. Through study of the sacred Vedas and the pure doctrine of Karma I attained the power of divination. Your people would classify me among fortune tellers, but I am poles apart from the vulgar humbugs that trade upon ignorance and superstition. Promise you will come tomorrow, for I am upset by this accident. Then I will be both your historian and your prophet. I shall count on you, m'sieur."

"Though I mentally sneered at the woman's pretensions and lay awake half the night assuring myself that I would never seek her out, I was at her door ten minutes before the appointed time next day. She had either assumed her professional air or was under the spell of her supernatural attainments. I will not describe the 'inner temple of mysteries' to which she conducted me, but in the weird effect of its hangings, mirrors, grotesque carvings and mythical symbols it challenges the most hardened skeptic. Throwing the whole light of a golden light upon my face with a powerful reflector, she generalized upon my past life as any shrewd judge of human nature might do. Then, suddenly knitting her brows and leaning closer, she slowly spelled out 'Marcia Arnold.'"

"That is the name of the girl you will marry," she announced in a dreamy voice, "and there you see her."

"With that the lights faded to the dimness of deep twilight and there followed the darkness of a dungeon. Opposite me as if in life was the image of the sweet and beautiful woman you know as Mrs. Robeley. Never before had I been dominated by the tender passion, but there I was fathoms deep in love with what might have been an enchanting illusion or a superb painting. So deeply was I impressed that after leaving in a bewilderment of doubt I sketched the magnificent creature so indelibly impressed upon my memory."

"Eighteen months later I was in southern California, enjoying the medicinal virtues of the climate and finding subjects in some of the delightful scenery. One morning I had my easel at the edge of a wooded precipice overlooking a charming spread of landscape. The velvet carpeting of grass and moss had failed to warn me of approaching footsteps, and when I turned it was the startled movement caused by a half suppressed scream. There were two ladies, the elder anxiously supporting the younger, whose face was blanched and whose eyes were fastened upon me as though I were a terrifying apparition. It was the girl the Indian sorceress had shown me in Paris, but what did she know of me?

"What can be the matter, daughter?" asked the elder. "You have always been so strong and vigorous."

"Is your name Henry Morton?" asked the younger of me, without heeding the mother's question.

"It is Wilton Robeley," I responded quietly. At that instant it flashed upon me that in a desire to conceal my identity I had given the name of Henry Morton to the fortune teller. Then, with the inspiration of an anxious lover, I added, "But I have a cousin of that name, who bears a striking resemblance to me."

"My immediate reward was a revival of strength and spirits on the part of the young lady. The mother introduced herself as Mrs. Gilson, her daughter as Miss Gilson, and then said, 'Lucy, we had best get back to the hotel.'"

"Lucy Gilson?" And yet it was her presence that had been conjured up as my bride to be. She was the girl of my sketch and my dreams. The next day I called at the hotel and inquired after her. I called often. We walked, drove, painted and boated together. I came to know through the intuition of love that she was not indifferent to me. One evening as we drifted lazily through the water lilies she handed me a sketch of myself and asked, 'Is that a picture of Henry Morton?'

"It's perfect," I answered, though dumfounded. A shadow of anger crossed her face, and she was about to tear the picture to pieces when I caught her hands and suddenly showed the reproduction of herself that I had made in Paris. It was her turn to be surprised, and when I told her of my experience at the fortune teller's on Rue de Bogues, giving her the date, she quickly exclaimed:

"Why, I was there with Marcia Arnold. Mamma and I did Europe that season, and we two girls visited that Indian princess just for a lark. That was where I saw Henry Morton, whom I was told fate had decreed as my future husband."

"Before we rowed home it was all explained, and the sequel of our strange experience was a happy marriage. The dusky prophetess who had confused the name of the two girls was a cultivated fraud. It was all a trick of the mirrors, ladies."—Detroit Free Press.

The Desecration of Scenery.

Ten years ago, we are assured, hardly a letter of the alphabet could have been described, either on the Surrey or the Middlesex shore of the Thames, but now mills, wharves, hotels, chimney stacks and sheds seem to vie with one another in the exhibition of these huge painted placards, which are an abomination to the eye and an effectual bar to the improvement of London from an aesthetic point of view. But if any one is sanguine enough to suppose that "business men" will give up the system on the ground that, while it annoys other people, it does not benefit themselves, we are afraid he is doomed to disappointment. The people who go to the expense of putting up these placards must know best whether they are of any use, and it can hardly be believed that they would continue to spend money on them unless they were. Whether many among them would be found public spirited enough to sacrifice the advantage derived from such erections to the mere love of the beautiful—which, unhappily, has not that influence among Englishmen which it possesses in some other countries—we should be disposed to doubt.—London Standard.

Eating Slowly.

The opinion that hurry in eating is a prolific cause of dyspepsia is founded on common observation. The ill results of bolting food have been attributed to the lack of thorough mastication and to the incomplete action of the saliva upon the food. Two-thirds of the food which we eat is starch, and starch cannot be utilized in the system as food until it has been converted into sugar, and this change is principally effected by the saliva. But there is a third reason why rapidity of eating interferes with digestion. The presence of the salivary secretion in the stomach acts as a stimulus to the secretion of the gastric juice. Irrespective of the mechanical function of the teeth, food which goes into the stomach incompletely mingled with saliva passes slowly and imperfectly through the process of stomach digestion. Therefore, as a sanitary maxim of no mean value, teach the children to eat slowly, and in giving this instruction by example, the teacher as well as the pupil may receive benefit.—Troy Times.

Sleeping a Fine Art.

Most persons labor under the delusion that sleep is a natural function, and that slumber is a state that requires no preparation. Given a bed and a certain hour of the evening, and sleep follows its simple creed. As a matter of fact they find that they do not always sleep when they think they should, but it never occurs to them that their theory is wrong. But it is. Sleep is a state requiring careful preparation, and without that preparation its best results cannot be obtained.

The Minister Did It.

"Kinneawinskootsker has the most unmanageable name on earth. He says that there never was but one individual who endeavored to designate him upon first acquaintance."

"Who was that?"

"The clergyman who married him. He looked at Kinney for a moment, glanced at a card in his hand and then said, 'I pronounce—I pronounce you man and wife.'"—Philadelphia Call.

Brandy Drops a Myth.

"This action of the police prohibiting the sale of brandy drops is laughable to men in business," said a manufacturing confectioner. "Why, a man might eat an entire bushel of ordinary brandied chocolates without getting a pony glassful of the pure spirit. Confectioners have a mixture of their own for this purpose, which I can assure you contains a very small proportion of brandy—less than an ounce to the gallon. There is about the same proportion of spirit in it as there is of grape juice in a quart bottle of claret at a cheap table d'hôte."

"I learned my trade in England, and I remember that thirty years ago there was a howl over there against the sale of brandy snaps. This is a confection very popular with school children over there, very much the same as peanut brittle is here. A parliamentary committee inquired into the matter and discovered that a ton of brandy snaps contained less than half a pint of pure alcohol. The sale of snaps was not interfered with."

Poetic Fitness.

The spouse of the man who wrote that celebrated work, "Short Talks on the Care of Children," left him to care for their infant the other day while she attended a meeting of the society of wives of Literary Men. When she returned she found her progeny hitched up on the hatrack by its waistband and her husband, in his shirt sleeves, admiringly contemplating an article which he had just finished. When she had successfully resisted a desire to faint, she glanced over his shoulder at the title of the production which he had written. It was, "In Warm Weather Babies Should be Kept from Worrying."

The Alps Under Foot.

The mystery is gone from the Alps—none but climbers know how completely. Every mountain and point of view of even third-rate importance has been ascended, most by many routes. Almost every gap between two peaks has been traversed as a pass. The publications of some dozen mountaineering societies have recorded these countless expeditions in rows of volumes of appalling length. Of late years vigorous attempts have been made to co-ordinate this mass of material in the form of climbers' guides, dealing with particular districts, wherein every peak and pass is dealt with in strict geographical succession and every different route and all the variations of each route are set forth, with references to the volumes in which they have been described at length by their discoverers. Nearly half the Alps has been treated in this manner, but the work has taken ten years and, of course, the whole requires periodical revision.—Scribner's.

Coffee in 1708.

It is recorded in a "New View of London," published in 1708, that "one James Fair, a barber, who kept the house (which is now the Rainbow) by the Inner Temple Gate, one of the oldest in England, was in the year 1657 presented by the Inquest of St. Dunstan's for making and selling a sort of liquor called coffee, to the great nuisance and prejudice of the neighborhood. And who (adds the author) could then have thought London would ever have 3,000 such nuisances, and that coffee would have been, as now, so much drunk by the first quality and physicians?"

Another Instance.

"Yes," said the visiting Englishman, "it is no doubt true that the great national sin of the Americans is a mad haste, a wild and reckless impetuosity."

The native listened attentively, and the visitor proceeded:

"I noticed by the newspapers that the medals won by the successful exhibitors at the Columbian exposition three years ago are now being delivered to their owners."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Why is it that one man is old and decrepit at 45, and another hale and hearty at 80? It depends on the care he takes of himself. Often a man's body gets out of repair—the trouble grows until it lays him out in bed. Whenever a man feels that he is not quite as well as he ought to be, whenever he is listless, without energy and without vitality, whenever he finds that he is losing weight and that his ordinary work gives him undue fatigue, he needs Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. If he keeps on working with his liver inactive and his body under a constant nervous strain. He will not be hearty when he is old. The "Golden Medical Discovery" cures many so-called diseases because nearly all illness springs from the same thing—bad digestion and consequent impure blood. The "Discovery" makes the appetite good, the digestion strong, assimilation easy, and the blood rich and pure.

Are Your Feet Cold?

I thought so. : Wet Too? To be sure.

Why shouldn't they be, around days like these with such substance under foot to walk on, and not the proper footwear. Most men think it too much trouble to put on rubbers, therefore Box Calf and Enamel Shoes with heavy soles are designed for their wear.

OUR BULL DOG BOX CALF with heavy double soles are shoes for winter wear that keep the feet right. They sell the world over at $5.00; our price is $4.75.

ENAMEL SHOES we have many styles of, and where we received $7.00 a pair we now ask but $6.00. That's the cash system's way of cutting prices.

THESE POINTED TOE SHOES have the invisible cork soles.

THE ROUND TOE has no cork soles.

Daytime Jewels.

The fashion of wearing jewels in the daytime is every day growing more fashionable in England. Two or three years ago, if a British matron wished to level a sneer at the head of a beautiful and well dressed American, she would glare at her through her lorgnette and observe, with a curl of the lip: "Fancy! How vulgar! Wears her diamonds down to breakfast." Time reverses many things, however, and now it is the English woman who overdoes matters in the way of daytime jewelry. Women of the highest rank wear their diamonds and their single row of pearls every day of their lives and to the exclusion of other ornaments. No woman who respects herself, at all events in Paris, is to be seen without a pearl necklace. Most chic Parisiennes are incrusting their umbrella handles with real gems. At many of the fashionable weddings in England diamonds fasten the veils to bonnets above the forehead in front and over the cache-peigne at the back, and many well dressed women are having diamonds mounted as bonnet pins, while some follow the footsteps of the Princess of Wales and keep their toques in place with a diamond hilted dagger. —London Letter.

Black Satin Coats the Vogue.

"Black satin is a material in vogue for coats," writes Isabel A. Mallon in The Ladies' Home Journal, "and upon the coats made of it lace, ribbon and all rich decorations run riot. The design most in vogue for satin has a close fitting bodice with an attached skirt, this skirt being formed of the trimming. A typical black satin coat is fitted to the figure, but has in the center of the back and just in front a few soft folds. It is cut so that it extends two inches below the hips, where it arches slightly, and it is then finished with a frill of black lace that reaches almost to the knees. Wide, drooping revers of the satin are overlaid with cut jet, while at the neck is a folded collar of the satin, with a large flaring bow in the back. A similar bow, but somewhat larger, is at the back at the waist line, and from it come two long satin ends that are drawn over the hips to the front and are loosely knotted so that they fall far down over the lace. With a jet bonnet as its adjunct such a coat may be worn with a simple skirt, which must, however, be black, and the effect of a very rich and elaborate costume will result."

The English Governess.

Sir Walter Besant is again endeavoring to arouse the British public to a sense of the "downright cruelty and wickedness" of paying a governess only $125 a year and then sending her away to keep herself for a two months' holiday. "I do not believe," he says, "that those who do it realize the meaning of it. The evil is done by want of thought in this as in so many instances. If it is done in full knowledge of what it means, then the perpetrator is one of the lowest and basest of her kind. To give a woman $25 a year, to expect her to dress like a lady—always to wear decent gloves, for instance—and to turn her out to keep herself for eight weeks is nothing short of barbarity. Eight weeks at 25 shillings a week is £10. There is left the sum of £15 for dress and every other expense, and for the future no prospect at all. Poor governess!"

India's Woman Barrister.

Miss Cornelia Sobraj, who took the degree of B. C. L. at Oxford about three years ago, is rapidly attaining success as a barrister in India, not only in the native but in British courts. At first she only practiced in the former, but lately she was intrusted with the defense in a murder case tried at Poona, in a British court. As usual in such trials, where all the witnesses are natives, much false evidence was offered. Miss Sobraj, who had faith in her client's innocence, conducted the case with great ability and secured a verdict of acquittal after the jury had deliberated 20 minutes. The London Telegraph says, "The lady barrister has received many congratulations on the result of her forensic ability."

The Sway of the Sash.

How fascinating are the belts and sashes which form such important items in the fashions of the moment! Close fitting, deep folded belts made of satin or silk are worn with toilets of silk, fine mohair and grass lawn. The newest ribbon belts are finished off with a flat piping on each side of white silk or satin, but if the belt is black or dark in color the piping may be in a light, contrasting shade. Loosely draped sashes look best on youthful figures, and folded belts crossed in front are most becoming to slender shapes. Even plain dresses may be converted into smart, stylish toilets if the belt or sash and the collar and bows are chosen to correspond and in good taste. —Philadelphia Times.

Early Women Postmasters.

The common impression is that women first entered our postal service some 30 years ago. The earliest postmasters of Salem, Mass., and Portsmouth, N. H., were women. In 1700 Portsmouth was the end of the great mail route, and important also as handling a large part of the English mail coming and going. In those days postmasters were required to write official news letters, to accommodate travelers, and to render other services. Mrs. Harvey did her postal work well and besides kept the Three Tuns, the leading hotel in New Hampshire. —C. W. Ernest in Woman's Journal.

Only Uses the Brush.

The empress of Austria has the finest head of hair of any royal lady in Europe, and yet it is never washed. Every day it is brushed through, while a lotion, of which the recipe is jealously kept, is employed. Seven brushes are used, one after the other, so that perfect cleanliness may be insured, and the operation takes two hours and four ladies in waiting.

A Melancholy State.

"I've made up my mind to one thing," said the resolute-looking young man. "I'm not going to the theater any this winter for what reason?" "For many reasons. In the first place, I can't afford it, and if I could afford it, I'd probably find the seats all taken for the play I wanted to see. And if I got a seat, it would be behind some girl with a big hat. And if I did get to see the play, I might not like it, anyhow." —Washington Star.

A Slight Mistake.

A young surgeon had just amputated the limb of his first patient. The professor appears. "Does the operation meet your approval, professor?" asks the youth, confidentially. "You have done your work well, save for one slight mistake." "Indeed?" "Yes; you have amputated the wrong leg—it's the left limb that is gangrened." —L'Illustrate de Poche.

Latest and Shortest.

"Repeat now the shortest commandment," said she. The Sunday-school girl to her class. And a freckled faced urchin replied readily. The shortest is: "Keep off the grass." —Buffalo Times.

THE CONSIDERATE HUSBAND.

Wife—You are very late. It's past two o'clock.
Husband—My darling, I didn't want to disturb your beauty sleep. The rest you get before midnight, science says, is the healthiest, you know. —Fliegende Blätter.
